

About the Authors

Carrigan Rice

Carrigan Rice is a senior at Georgetown University's School of Health, majoring in Global Health. She hopes to continue to apply her public health background in future endeavors and aspires towards a career in medicine.

Kush Modi

Kush Modi is a junior in Georgetown University's College of Arts and Sciences, majoring in Neurobiology and minoring in Economics and Public Health. He is interested in cancer and dementia research at the moment and plans to pursue medical school after he graduates.

Tharun Potluri

Tharun Potluri is a junior undergraduate student in Georgetown University's School of Health, majoring in Human Science and minoring in Disability Studies. He is currently a research assistant in the Firefighters' Burn and Surgical Research Lab where he is interested in studying burn wound pathophysiology, specifically post-burn epidermal dyspigmentation and the dysregulation of pigment cell function as a result of soft tissue trauma. Having been accepted into Georgetown's Early Assurance Program, Tharun will be matriculating into Georgetown's School of Medicine upon his graduation in 2025.